of all kinds, done as

Two things have come out of the depression that are worth noting.

The large percentage of population here discovered that they cannot get along without the country. The small communities have discovered that they can make their own life without much worrying concerning large cities.

For long it was a habit of big cities to display airs of superiority to the small ones called "rural communities." They have pretended to believe that the small town was passing into obsolescence and that the people were flocking to big cities and making them more and more important and influential.

And, also, a lot of "country" people, lured by the glamour of the cities, have left the countryside and they have discovered that many of them too late, that the life of the small communities has a thousand advantages not possessed by large cities, and that the mushroom development of big cities has been not too good thing.

Today the small town is taking on a new dignity and individuality.

Nowhere is the proof that the small town is realizing its possibilities so well as in getting to the hammer and the anvil, the old-fashioned "centers of population" are attending enthusiastically to the building of a destiny for their small communities.

And as the farm community becomes independent, the large city is becoming too.

The disillusioned folk who have seen the bright lights of the city and have returned to the white, will be drifting back to the country, eager to capture once more the peace, the sincerity, the intimate comradeship that abides where people are comradeship is possible.

BOLSTER'S MILLS

Seven Point Head and Dee

Willard Clark, Bolster's Mill, has been in the Errol (N. H.) market since Thanksgiving. He returned here after bringing a big one he had to the mill and heard of his car. It was a wonderful one.

Also, by warden permission, he was conveying a 7 ton load of lumber to the mill in the woods. The load was completely eaten up by wolves and crows, crows or something. The head of the head was gnawed, but the mill was not affected.

HARRISON

The sale and supper of the Harrison Community church was held at Woodland Hall on Wednesday evening, Mrs. C. C. Robbins was in charge of the supper and there were on sale, fine and candy and popcorn. A large crowd was sold, the lucky number going to Mrs. J. Howard Randall and a cake was won by Myron Briggs. At the Parent-Teachers' Association meeting which followed the guest speaker was Mr. John L. Papper of Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Peterson and family of Douglass Hill recently spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Peterson at Grand View.

BRIDGTON

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Briggs and family were dinner guests at Mrs. B. B. Carter's, Lottie Morrisson's, last week.

Norman Libby has his home in Bridgton in his house. He has been here for several winters past. He is now at his home in the Burnham district, this winter, keeping bar-bor's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Briggs and daughter, also Mrs. Olive H. Briggs, Fryburg, were callers at Lottie Morrisson's, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lundberg are spending a week's vacation at Mrs. Libby's home in Fryburg.

It looks as though we were going to have snow for Christmas as around four inches came Sunday night, and it seems a natural thing to expect that we will enjoy our automobiles, the kiddies enjoy the snow, also those men who row boats and lumber to get out of the woods. There

OUR KITCHEN

Oxford County will again lead the state in the number of communities serving "Square Meals for Health" if the reports of this week are a fair sample. The project has been planned to date by every town and South Paris Farm Bureau have been included in their calendar. A necessary food is a meal containing all the necessary ingredients, put together in an attractive and delectable form. This meal was served at the West Paris Farm Bureau, recently. Try it. It is a good thing, baked potato stuffed with sausage, raw carrot, cabbage and peanut salad, prime variety.

For the younger children, use plain baked potato, bacon instead of sausage; grate carrot with a bit of lemon juice and salt makes an ideal salad for a child with a tiny bit of cream, or steamed prunes may be used instead.

State Contest at Orono

Our state contest is at the University of Maine, Orono, on December 20, 30 and 31. Local leaders, assistant leaders and county champions are eligible to attend. Every county champion (seniors) must exhibit (except livestock and poultry). The exhibit requirements are the same as for local and county contests.

Prune Variety

3 cups cake crumbs, 1-2 c. whipped cream, 1-2 c. prune pulp, 1-2 teaspoon orange or lemon extract. Cooked or canned prunes. Combine fruit and cake and beat until they make a light paste and extract. No additional sugar is needed if prunes and cream are sweetened.

Our suggestions for using left-overs may be secured from the Home Demonstration Agent at the Farm Bureau Office, South Paris.

In the State Kitchen Improvement Contest

Unluckily many contests, everyone who enters wins, for the owner of the kitchen has a more convenient and attractive kitchen than she had before, with all the improvements that it brings," says Edna M. Cobb, home management specialist for the Extension Service. To the four most deserving kitchens, however, will go four cash prizes of $20, $15, $10 and $5. These awards will be made on the basis of improvements made, the cost involved, and a brief written statement by the owner of the kitchen, describing the improvements made.

"The sooner you enroll, the sooner the home demonstration agent can get around to score your kitchen, so you can get to work on it, for October 31, 1933, the closing date of the contest, is less than a year away, and it takes time to get things done."

Husbands can help their wives by lending their assistance with hammer, saw and paint brush. In fact, "Making the most improvements at the least expense is the spirit back of the contest. You win anyway, and you may win twice!"

Two women in Oxford County have already enrolled: Mrs. Charles Clifford, Bethel, and Mrs. Elmer Baker, Fryeburg. The contest is open to any home-maker residing in a rural district, but she must enroll before March 31, 1933. Enrollment cards may be obtained from the County Farm Bureau Office, South Paris, or from any local Home Management Project Leader.

Food Projects for 1933

"Know Your Groceries" will be given in May and June. This project has to do with the economical buying of canned goods—the sizes of cans in relation to their contents, how these products are graded and how to buy most intelligently. The information gained at this meeting alone will save the cost of Farm Bureau membership.

"Vegetable for Health II" will begin next year's work left off. There will be help in planning, canning and garden budgets for those who wish it. There will be news of the latest discoveries about minerals and vitamins, and the nutritive merits of different vegetables. A demonstration of some new ways to cook the old winter standbys will top off the meeting. Meetings in this project will be scheduled in February and March.

4-H Club Work an Inspiration

Some more years since, on an afternoon of late October, I was driving along one of the back roads in Madison, Somerset County. It was dusk and the surroundings, although in that locality often beautiful, were at that hour of the day very gloomy. The headlights disclosed a group of children. The spot was two miles from my home. I pulled up beside them and these diminutive folk, which had been looking pretty lively, for the moment were at rest. They were out of breath and glad to climb in and out of the car. It was before the epidemic of kidnapping which had since had and I think some of these youngsters knew me, anyway. "We have been to the Club," said they, in answer to my inquiry. They were members of a 4-H organization and, as I remember it, had walked about four miles to attend an afternoon session and were now about half way back.

Having to get the reason for such extraordinary devotion, I asked what they had done at the club that afternoon. The balance of the time to their destination was occupied with their reply (much of the time two or three talking at once) and it was quite apparent that the event was not complete when we arrived at their home.

I have since been the guest of 4-H Clubs in Somerset, Kennebec and Aroostook Counties. I can never quite comprehend the enthusiasm which the leaders are able to arouse. In some way they get these youngsters as interested in tasks, ordinarily looked upon as irksome, as they would be in fishing, baseball or a picnic. The result is amazing: the girls become accomplished homemakers, learn to sew, can and cook. The boys develop into expert agriculturists and herdsmen. It is hard to estimate the good resulting to the individual and to society. And the devotion of these leaders is likewise not to be comprehended by ordinary reasoning. They sacrifice much in time and often help out meager club resources with their own funds. They must have an abounding love for youth and a knowledge in part of the good accomplished, otherwise they could not keep so persistently at the task.

The 4-H Club work is only one of the many immensely useful Farm Bureau activities. When I get downhearted a mental review of what I have observed as to the 4-H Clubs will always cheer me up. No state of society can be hopeless in which such work flourishes.

Carrot, Cabbage and Peanut Salad
1 c. shredded cabbage, 1 large carrot, grated or finely minced; lettuce, 4 tablespoons ground peanuts (or 4 tablespoons peanut butter), 1 c. mayonnaise.
Mix cabbage, carrots and peanuts with mayonnaise. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves. If peanut butter is used, mix with mayonnaise dressing first.

"A home cellar with dirt floor and no furnace makes a good place to store vegetables," says R. M. Riley, instructor in horticulture, at the University of Maine. Root crops keep best if packed in barrels with sand or piled in piles of medium size and covered with sand. It is worse than foolish to try to store specimens free from disease of any kind. Temperature and moisture vary with different vegetables—onions, squash, pumpkins, and tomatoes require a dry atmosphere while the other common crops keep best in more moist surroundings. 32 to 35 degrees Fahrenheit is the best temperature at which to keep beets, cabbages, carrots, cauliflower, celery, onions, parsnips and rutabaga. The best temperature for potatoes is 37 to 38 degrees; pumpkins and squash, 45 to 52 degrees. Avoid piling in too large piles or ventilation in the center will be poor and such diseases as blackheart of potato may develop.

There are plenty of cabbages, carrots and turnips in the cellar now. But how will they be next spring? The way vegetables are stored will determine in a large measure what is served at table next April. Mr. Riley has prepared a table next information of this subject in a bulletin "Storage of Vegetables." Copies may be had for the asking at the Extension office in South Paris.

Child Feeding
This project is offered to communities who did not take it in 1932. It consists of a series of two half-day meetings, each with its demonstration of delicious foods suitable for both children and adults. The discussion will center around the foods suitable for children of different ages, feeding schedules, and the methods needed to form good habits of eating.

TOWN BEAUTY AN ASSET

In spite of the apparent commercialism of the age in which we live, it is evident to any observer that the American people are developing a greater appreciation of the beautiful. This is confined to the wealthier classes, but extends to the great masses in the towns and villages, and in the rural districts. Older ones are being laid out with wider streets with provision for larger lawns, more trees, shrubbery and flowers, and a more attractive setting generally.

New towns show better architecture and greater harmony with their surroundings, while unsightly yard fences have largely disappeared. The net result of all these modern developments is beauty. And aside from the satisfaction which it affords the eye, it pays in dollars and cents.

Beautiful cities, towns and villages attract people. They attract permanent residents, they attract tourists and they attract pride. It is natural that a person selecting a trading center will choose a town that is beautiful and clean in preference to one that is unsightly and dirty, if other conditions are anywhere near equal.

Therefore, it behooves the authorities of any community, as well as each individual citizen, to make the most of their opportunities for improving the appearance of the place in which they live. Beauty and cleanliness are a town's best assets.

Your friend is not the one who tells the truth about you, but conceals some of it. Bless his loyal heart!—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Plans for a tuberculosis clinic in Oxford County are being considered at the present time and it is hoped that during 1933 a series of tuberculosis clinics can be conducted within the limits of the county. During the past eighteen months four such clinics were held in Brownfield, Denmark, Fryeburg and Lovell.

The money derived from the sale of seals and bonds is used for the elimination of tuberculosis in the State of Maine. The Maine Public Health Association during the past year has given the tuberculosis test to about 6000 children. All those who showed any reaction to the test were then given a chest X-ray. If this X-ray showed that any actual infection was present the patient was asked to attend the final clinic where they were examined, diagnosed and advised as to treatment by tuberculosis specialists. In this way the disease is discovered in its early stages. Tuberculosis is curable if discovered early and the childhood type is very easily checked. Such clinics have been held this year in Cumberland, Harlow, Kennebec, Penobscot, Somerset, Waldo, Washington and York counties.

The fine work which Miss Abbie Buck is doing in the public schools of Maine toward teaching the boys and girls right health habits is also partly financed by the returns from the Christmas Seal Sale. Oxford County schools have received some of Miss Buck's attention this year and her work has been instrumental in securing correction of defects and in arousing an interest in better health habits.
